PROGRAM AIM	The Grafton County Juvenile Restorative Justice (GCJRJ) is a confidential and individualized program that seeks to repair harm a youth has caused using restorative justice principles and practices. GCJRJ advocates for affected parties to have a voice in the process of how a youth takes accountability for their actions. Either a panel of community members, along with GCJRJ staff and the affected party (if they choose), and the youth, meet to create a collaborative reparative agreement. An alternative could include the affected party and the youth participate in a restorative circle that responds to the harm through dialog. While the harmed party has the primary place in this process, the youth also has an opportunity to seek personal transformation through education, community involvement, community resources, and taking responsibility for their offense and its repair. The result of the program is the restoration of community with the additional benefit of a youth avoiding a criminal charge and future involvement with the criminal justice system.
